

California Social Science Framework Draft

Modification Request

Framework Draft	Proposed Modification	Reason
Chapter 5 from line 566-569 Immediately following the war, genocide, the systematic destruction of an ethnic or religious group, was established as a crime under international law through the development of the United Nations. Unfortunately, the Holocaust was not the first or last genocide in the twentieth century.	Chapter 5 from line 566-569 Immediately following the war, genocide, the systematic destruction of an ethnic or religious group, was established as a crime under international law through the development of the United Nations. At the same time in Asia-Pacific region, they were called “The comfort women”, under duress sexual abuse were forced upon women. Unfortunately, the Holocaust was not the first or last genocide in the twentieth century.	Present discussion materials to educating students in order to help them with the various violations of the human rights that occurred in World War II (use how comfort women were forcibly obtained in World War II as an example.) In particular, after the WWII, UN’s declaration of Human Rights were advocated to prevent the comfort women, however atrocity exist currently among children and women in Congo.

Framework Draft	Proposed Modification	Reason
Chapter 5 from line 1214-1219 Since the 1980s, much of Asia (particularly China, Singapore, Hong Kong, South Korea, and Japan) has become a notable economic success story. China in particular skyrocketed as a major manufacturer of inexpensive goods, which increasingly included electronics. Many historians and political scientists have debated the degree to which China's capitalism is likely to prompt changes in its authoritarian, single-party government.	Chapter 5 from line 1214-1219 Since the 1980s, much of Asia (particularly China, Singapore, Hong Kong, South Korea, and Japan) has become a notable economic success story. China in particular skyrocketed as a major manufacturer of inexpensive goods, which increasingly included electronics. Many historians and political scientists have debated the degree to which China's capitalism is likely to prompt changes in its authoritarian, single-party government. South Korea has achieved an unprecedented growth, even under the special threat by the division. As the Military Demarcation Line created different systems in North and South Korea, their present economy difference exemplifies a special case that reminds one of freedom and capitalism.	South Korea with America support successfully eradicate the communism effectively. Also, South and North of the division, and the current situation, set the comparison and ultimately exemplified the superiority of the liberal democratic systems. Currently, still divided into two separate nations, the comparison between South and North Korea is ultimate examples of Democratic and Communist political system.